Forecast For East Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 17 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mostly dry evening. Cloud thickening overnight, with isolated showers possible.

This Evening and Tonight:
Mostly dry but breezy through the evening with some clear spells, most frequent across southeastern parts. Patchy frost possible in prone rural spots. Thicker cloud across the Derbyshire hills is likely to bring a few outbreaks of rain. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Monday:
Breezy and often rather cloudy, but also some sunny spells. A few outbreaks of rain possible through the day, but most parts dry. Further rain spreading northeast by late afternoon. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Very wet, with some persistent and heavy rain Tuesday and Wednesday, especially across the Peaks. Likely turning colder Thursday, with further outbreaks of rain, and also coastal gales possible.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.